The Promise and Perils of Marketing Transformation

Provider organizations are moving quickly to modernize their marketing functions with digital-savvy teams, thoughtful strategy and the technology and data to support their ambitious goals. Some have accomplished it, but many say that it's harder than anticipated. In this keynote session, learn how Penn Medicine – an early adopter in CRM and Precision Marketing – transformed their marketing strategy, team, infrastructure and methods to grow their brand, build profitable business, increase customer engagement and enhance their role as strategic leaders. Leave this session with new ideas and perspectives on marketing transformation.

Suzanne has worked in marketing, strategic planning, and business development in health care for more than 20 years. Suzanne is VP & Chief Marketing Officer of Penn Medicine, a Top 10 health system and $7B clinical and research enterprise. She recently returned to Penn in an expanded role after helping to launch IBM Watson Health, where she served as Vice President of Portfolio Marketing. Suzanne was inducted into the Healthcare Internet Hall of Fame in 2017. Her previous roles included CMO and strategic leadership positions for three other academic medical centers, as well as the American Enterprise Institute (a public policy think tank), and the National Wildlife Federation. She started her career working as a staffer on Capitol Hill. Suzanne is a lecturer at the Wharton School in Strategic Brand Management, Healthcare, and Marketing, and is a frequent presenter at marketing and technology conferences. She received her BA from Penn State University in Foreign Service and International Politics.

The Big Bold Brave New World of Content Marketing and Storytelling: How healthcare marketers can embrace the clear opportunity of content and storytelling -- without going insane.

Content marketing and storytelling offer a vast opportunity for all organizations, especially healthcare. But too many of us aren't fully realizing its potential. So the question is: How do we inspire our teams to create more robust, effective marketing to reach the people we want to talk to? How can we level-up to create content and stories people will value? (Because the best marketing doesn't feel like marketing.) How do we up the quality of what we are producing in a time-challenged, resource-constrained and regulated world? (And how do you define "quality," anyway?)

In this fun, inspiring session, Ann will counsel you on how you can create marketing that's engaging—because your audience demands it and your organization deserves it.

Ann is a writer and the Wall Street Journal bestselling author of Everybody Writes: Your Go-To Guide to Creating Ridiculously Good Content and Content Rules: How to Create Killer Blogs, Podcasts, Videos, Ebooks, Webinars (and More) That Engage Customers and Ignite Your Business (co-authored with C.C. Chapman). Her company, MarketingProfs, is a marketing training and education company with more than 600,000 subscribers. MarketingProfs trains marketers worldwide through its online and in-person education programs. The MarketingProfs B2B Marketing Forum is the premier global marketing event for business-to-business marketers. Her previous company, ClickZ, is one of the first sources of digital marketing information in the world. She sold it in 2000, a lifetime ago in Internet years. A LinkedIn Influencer, she has more than 420,000 followers on Twitter. She is consistently named one of the most influential marketers on social media.

Zap the Gap: From Boomers to Linksters, Working with Multiple Generations

For the first time in history, there are five generations working side by side: the Traditional Generation (born pre-1945), Baby Boomers (born 1946-1964), Generation X (born 1965-1980), Millennial Generation (1981-1995), and the Linkster Generation (born after 1995). Each has different values, standards of quality, and attitudes toward customers and coworkers. These differences can wreak havoc, or they can be a source of incredible energy and creativity. It's important to understand these differences and to have specific strategies for dealing with them.

In this highly charged, participatory presentation, Meagan Johnson outlines the dominant generational forces in the workplace and how each generation's "signpost" drives motivation, influences company loyalty, delivery of customer service and communication between coworkers. Learn from Meagan what you can do now to make the most of each generation in your workplace!

Meagan tackles the generational challenges, myths and misunderstanding head on. Unwilling to accept standard by-the-book generational generalizations, Meagan demonstrates to audiences, through her own in-depth research and program customization, that all generations have differences and strengths that go beyond mere age and appearance. Move beyond complaining about the generations and revisiting old generational information. Learn from Meagan Johnson what you can do right now to make the most of all the generations. Quoted by the Chicago Tribune, CNNMoney.com and US News & World Report, she has been heard on ABC Talk Live, NPR and profiled on Condé Nast's Portfolio.com. Meagan has become the 'Go To' expert for all things generational. Meagan gives audiences a chance to not only laugh at their own generation but flourish in the presence of others.

What's Working On Facebook Now: How Businesses Are Succeeding Using the Facebook Family of Apps

We're living in unprecedented times with the ever-growing presence of Facebook, Instagram, Messenger and WhatsApp. The social networking giants gather an inordinate amount of user data and, in turn, offer incredibly accurate targeting methods to help businesses grow. However, even for the most experienced marketers, getting consistently solid results on Facebook can prove elusive at times. The good news is, whatever your marketing goals, you can accomplish them using Facebook's array of tools. In this powerful session, world renowned Premier Facebook Marketing Expert, Mari Smith, will share exactly how businesses in a variety of industries are using Facebook to achieve solid results. And, she'll show how healthcare leaders can apply these same strategies and tactics to raise awareness, get discovered, generate authentic engagement, build loyal communities, showcase products, collect leads, drive growth and more. Whether on desktop or mobile, these strategies work seamlessly to have your message show up in the exact places where your audience spends their time.

Often referred to as "the Queen of Facebook," Mari Smith is considered the world's foremost expert on Facebook marketing and social media. She is a perennial Forbes' Top Social Media Power Influencer, author of The New Relationship Marketing and coauthor of Facebook Marketing: An Hour A Day. Forbes recently described Mari as, "... the preeminent Facebook expert. Even Facebook asks for her help." She is a recognized Facebook Partner; Facebook headhunted and hired Mari to lead the Boost Your Business series of live events across the US. Mari is an in-demand speaker, and travels the world to keynote and train at major events. Her digital marketing agency provides professional speaking, training and consulting services on Facebook and Instagram marketing best practices for Fortune 500 companies, brands, and SMBs. Mari is also an expert webinar and live video broadcast host, and she serves as Brand Ambassador for numerous leading global companies.

Advanced Technologies

Engage at Warp Speed with New Communications Platforms: Balancing Patient Expectations, Ethics and Provider Realities

The emergence of new consumer platforms is splintering media channels. Three big, seemingly unrelated trends are warping consumer expectations this year, including:

- Digital personal assistants catalyzing expectations for response times
- Chatbots disrupting the notional idea of traditional searching
- Messaging apps contorting the expectations of real-time transactions.

All three trends signal an important, fundamental change: hospitals need to unify an approach to marketing, operations and service focused on real-time capacity to deliver – while addressing ethical questions and provider-partner concerns. In this workshop, learn:

- What's realistic versus hype?
- What will physicians embrace or oppose?
- How can we support providers as these tools roll out?
- And more.

Speakers:

Chantal Reyna, MD, Assistant Professor, University of Cincinnati Medical Center

James Gardner, Director, Market and Business Development, MedTouch

Mike Mangi, Director, Strategy, Phase2

Abhi Sharma, Vice President, Product, Loyal

Facilitated by Ed Bennett, Founder, MarTech.Health

Intranet

Disrupting the Intranet - 10 Steps to Creating a User-Centered Intranet to Drive Employee Engagement and Productivity

Employees have the biggest impact on the success or failure of a health system, yet the internal communication and engagement tools they are provided continue to be an afterthought. Henry Ford Health System and Carilion Clinic realized this disparity and took on the challenge to create intranets that go beyond what has been traditionally done in healthcare. In this session, you will learn the ten critical steps that Henry Ford and Carilion used to disrupt their employee intranets.

Speakers:

Kelsey O'Neil, Web Services Associate
and

Erica Stromberg, Web Services Manager
Henry Ford Health System

Bryce Cannon, President, Modea

Content Marketing

Analytics, Optimization, Personalization, and Engagement: When Content Marketing Gets Technical

This isn't your standard content strategy session! Content marketing is no longer a "soft skill." In this session, learn about the technical aspects of content marketing, including analytics, optimization, personalization and engagement. Learn how two healthcare organizations (Cleveland Clinic and St. Louis Children's Hospital) are leveraging these tools to convert their content marketing programs into measurable and effective components of their overall strategy. Hear real case studies about effective content optimization programs and walk away with tools and tactics to implement into your own content marketing program immediately.

Speakers:

Matthew Bakaitis, Director, Content Engineering, Cleveland Clinic

John Odom, Senior Consultant, Digital Communications and Marketing, St. Louis Children's Hospital

Jenny Bristow, CEO, Creative Anvil

Social Media

Are You Riding the Social Media Wave? Or Are You Under the Wave?

Social Media is an ever-evolving medium. And it is continually more and more important to healthcare marketing, employee engagement, and patient experience. How your organization leverages social media has a big impact on healthcare decisions and brand impressions. So how do you stay in tune with the always changing world where what's hot today is boring and outdated tomorrow? How can you ride the wave rather than sink?

In this session, explore how some of the top brands in healthcare successfully leverage user-generated content (UGC), engage employees and physicians, strategically utilize a multi-channel approach, integrate location marketing, address the viral aspects of social media, use modern analytics and much more.

Speakers:

Jared Johnson, Manager, Marketing Technology & Analytics
Phoenix Children's Hospital

Stephen Strong, Director of Digital Marketing, Marketing, Communications and Media Relations, Northwestern Memorial HealthCare

Facilitated by Neal Linkon, Director, Marketing Operations, Children's Hospital of Wisconsin

Technology Integration and the Art of Showing Real ROI

John Wanamaker famously said, "Half the money I spent on advertising is wasted; I just don't know which half." Digital marketing arrived promising to end that problem with plentiful and reliable data. But more than a decade later, how many healthcare marketers can honestly prove real ROI? In this session, explore the Compassus journey from 'very little marketing' to a 'fully integrated marketing platform' and how they document real EMR-drawn patient ROI.

Engaging Audiences Through Video

Penn Medicine Princeton Health created a successful USTREAM channel to engage consumers through live streaming that features health experts and educators. Over the past 7 years, Princeton Health produced 109 videos that have received more than 44,000 views. In 2017, after reviewing viewership patterns, Princeton Health modified its strategy and made the switch from live presentations to pre-recorded videos, allowing for more flexibility in scheduling and the editing of content to be concise and less formal — more like a conversation that a patient might have with a trusted medical professional. The result was a 37% increase in views.

Patient Loyalty Versus Leakage Identification and Intervention: A Standardized Approach

Patient leakage hinders patient loyalty. Providers can identify patient leakage and create intervention materials and processes; however, these are often marginally effective and not easily scalable. This Sprint explores a new patient leakage and intervention process using standardized and semi-automatic reporting and analyses, with an emphasis on trajectory analyses on new patient encounter data to show rank-ordered sets. Learn how providers can close gaps between leakage, identification and intervention for new patients.

Nurturing a Happy Workplace: Overcoming Stress with a Sense of Humor

As leaders in healthcare marketing, we have the common pressures of shrinking budgets and heightened expectations. So how do we nurture teams who enjoy their work and bring their best every day? While competing for patients, health systems are also competing for the finest creatives, developers and strategists in the market. In this Sprint, Augusta University Health walks attendees through their tips and tricks for creating a work environment where employees thrive, innovate and maintain work-life balance all while improving the health system's bottom line.

Match-Making Marketing Style: Adding and Engaging Targeted Facebook Followers

Significantly increasing an organization's Facebook following can be a daunting task. Looking to supercharge the number of targeted and engaged followers on its Facebook page, Antelope Valley Hospital embarked on a social-match campaign that catapulted its growth from a snails pace to a 20% increase in just one month. The initiative simultaneously reinforced online messages local consumers were receiving via the hospital's printed newsletter by specifically targeting newsletter recipients. Discover how this large community hospital is exponentially increasing its Facebook audience and turning those new followers into fans who engage directly with the hospital and serve as advocates in the community.

Smaller Audience, Bigger Returns: Building a Separate Social Media Healthcare Brand From Scratch

Bigger isn't always better ... at least when it comes to social media fans and followers. Using a healthcare case study, see how a separate brand was created to leverage the precision of social media to find, engage and convert a small, targeted audience from scratch. After successfully building a modest, yet influential audience of Instagram followers, discover how the brand demonstrated a 500% increase in business with projections of continued growth.
